Report on Zoological Field Visit 2023

Date of visit: 21st December 2023

Place of visit: Hathai Kotor Eco-Park (23°48'57.1"N, 91°34'48.4"E), Shillong - Agartala - Sabrum Rd. Kamalnagar, Tripura 799203

Number of students: 34 (ZOOH5-08 and ZOOG3- 26)

Teaching Staff: 03 (Mrs. Sudipta Debbarma, Dr. S.K.S. Jamatia and Mrs. Jonaki Chakraborty)

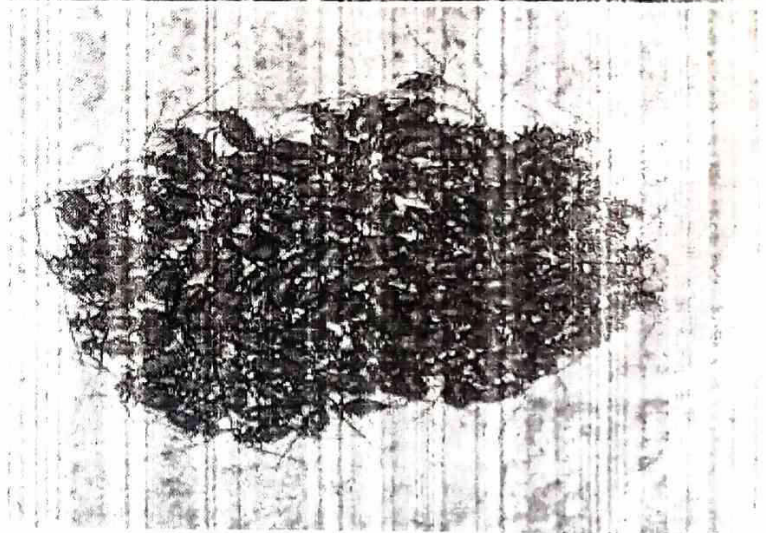

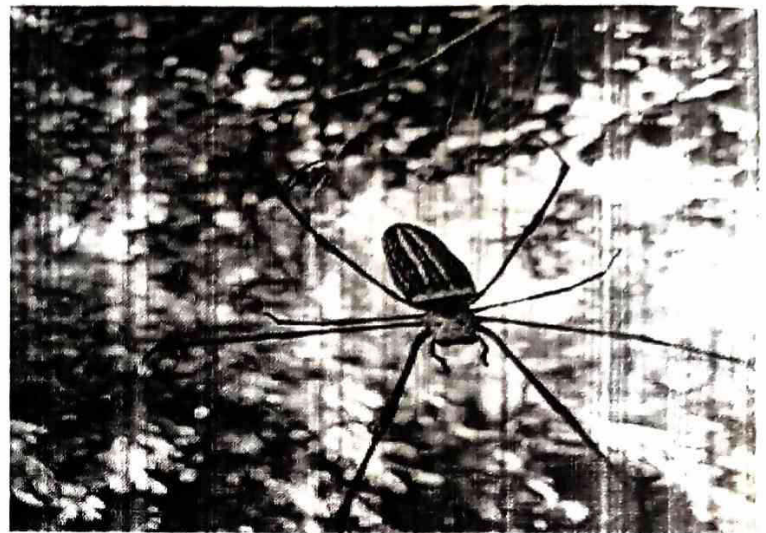

Class- BSC (Honours) 5th Semester and BSC (General) 3rd Semester

As a part of our courses offered in B.Sc. Zoology Programme of Tripura University, a one day field trip (21st December 2023) was arranged for BSC (Honours) 5th Semester and BSC (General) 3rd Semester Students to Hathai Kotor Eco-Park (23°48'57.1"N, 91°34'48.4"E), Shillong - Agartala - Sabrum Rd. Kamalnagar, Tripura 799203. A total of 34 students participated in this field trip.

A zoological field survey is a scientific study conducted in the field to gather information about the distribution, behavior, ecology, and abundance of animal species in their natural habitats. These surveys are crucial for understanding biodiversity, ecosystem dynamics, and the conservation of wildlife.

The students spent nearly four hours and visited several enclosures maintained by the Hathai Kotor Ecological Park authority and got exposure to various bio-diversity present in this park. The field trip was planned to experience the field exposure cum practical knowledge pertaining to their in-field understanding of ecology. Such Field trips to the ecological park are a great way to observe animals in their natural habitat and feel a connection to wildlife. Direct observations of animals were done by visual observations of animals in their natural habitats, interactions and environmental factors. Photographic records were done for documentation and identification.

Students will be actively engaged in conservation and sustainability, and filled with opportunities to get up-close and personal with wildlife. Zoological field surveys contribute valuable data for biodiversity conservation, species management, and the overall understanding of ecosystems. They are often collaborative efforts involving researchers, conservationists, and local communities.

Assamese people must not sell land to any foreigner: Himanta

Guwahati, Dec 10 (PTI): Assam Chief Minister Himanta Biswa Sarma on Sunday appealed to the Assamese people not to sell their land to any "suspected foreigner" in order to safeguard the culture and identity of the indigenous population. He also urged the people, especially youths, to be economically independent, emphasising the importance of financial growth for the progress of any community. Speaking at the 'Swahid Divas' programme, observed in memory of martyrs of Assam Agitation, at Boragoan in Guwahati, Sarma said, "I believe that if every Assamese takes a pledge to not sell his or her land to any suspected foreigner, our 'jati' (community) will be protected. Some families sell their land for economic benefit, but many families don't even need the money and yet they sell it to suspected foreigners." "Let us pledge not to sell our land to any suspected foreigner anymore," he said, adding that the government will bring in a law prohibiting the sale of land to "outsiders" in places such as Majuli, Barpeta and Batadrawa, centres of Vaishnavite culture in the state. Sarma, who recounted his association with the six-year-long Assam Agitation against illegal immigrants, culminating with the signing of the Assam Accord in August 1985, also highlighted the emphasis the leaders of the movement had laid on economic independence. "The agitation was not just based on emotions, but also logic. Many leaders of the agitation had dreamt of making Assam economically self-sufficient and youths of that time had also responded by taking up odd jobs. "But that is not the case anymore. Taking advantage of the Assamese youths' lack of will to work, suspected foreigners have taken over trade and commerce in important places," he claimed. Asserting that economic independence is as important as steps taken for safeguarding culture and language, the CM urged the youth to be more hard-working and appreciate the dignity of labour. Sarma also warned government officials who have "compromised" the progress of the state for some form of gratification, maintaining that society is weakened if the government officials fail to deliver.

Arunachal Dy CM calls to improve power sector in NE

Itanagar, Dec 10 (PTI): Arunachal Pradesh Deputy Chief Minister Chowna Mein on Saturday called for collective efforts to ensure a promising and sustainable future for the power industry in the northeast region. Mein, who is the chairman of the North Eastern Regional Power Committee (NERPC), chaired the 25th meeting of the panel in Kolkata. He underscored the need for proactive measures, such as the installation of surge arresters and the reconducting of transmission lines to high-temperature-low-sag (HTLS) ones, an official communiqué said. A surge arrester is a protective device for limiting voltage on equipment. Mein, during the meeting, announced the finalisation of the Guwahati Islanding Scheme, planned by NERPC under the Ministry of Power's directive. 'Islanding Scheme' is a defence mechanism for the power distribution system. He urged the stakeholders to expedite the implementation of the scheme and explore the feasibility of similar projects for other state capitals in the region. Addressing the challenges in commissioning hydro projects, Mein encouraged developers to adopt innovative and environment-friendly designs, aligning with India's non-fossil energy capacity targets. He commended Arunachal Pradesh for signing MoUs with NHPC, SIVN and NEEPCO for the development of 12 hydro projects. Recognising the unique challenges of the region, including geographical constraints and adverse weather conditions, Mein affirmed the NERPC forum's pivotal role in solving problems collectively. He highlighted the revamped distribution sector schemes (RDSS) aimed at reducing aggregate technical & commercial (AT&C) losses and urged distribution companies and state governments to prioritise settling outstanding bills for sustainable business operations. The deputy chief minister also initiated the formation of a power ministers' forum for North East for effective persuasion of issues in the sector, the communiqué said.

A One-Day Symposium on “An Insight into the Faunal World” held at SVM, Mohanpur, Tripura, on 08.12.2023

A one-day symposium titled “An Insight into the Faunal World” was organized by Department of Zoology of Swami Vivekananda Mahavidyalaya on 8th December, 2023. The objective of the symposium was to highlight the faunal world, also known as the world of animals, which is incredibly diverse and fascinating. It encompasses a vast array of species that inhabit various ecosystems, ranging from the depths of the ocean to the highest mountain peaks

In her inaugural address, Sudipta Debbarma, Head, Department of Zoology and IQAC Convenor, welcomed the dignitaries and elaborated on the theme of the symposium. She highlighted the significance of such deliberations. Shri Debabrata Roy, Secretary, Teacher's Council, shared his views on the theme that throughout earth's history, numerous species have gone extinct, while new ones have evolved. The process of evolution continues to shape the faunal world, and the fossil record provides insights into the history of life on earth.

The first Resource Person of the symposium, Dr. Dilip Nath, Assoc. Prof., Faculty of Science & Technology, ICFAI University, Tripura, gave lecture on “Integrated Crop Pest Management for Sustainable Development”. Integrated Crop Pest Management (IPM) is a comprehensive and sustainable approach to managing pests in agriculture. It aims to minimize the impact of pests on crops while promoting environmental sustainability, economic viability, and social responsibility. The goal of IPM is not to eradicate all pests but to keep their populations below levels that cause economic damage while minimizing adverse effects on the environment. He stressed on the use of Biological control methods which encourages the presence of natural enemies, such as predators and parasitoids, to control pest populations.

The second Resource Person, Dr. Krishnendu Das, Assistant Professor, Department of Mathematics, Women's College, Agartala, gave an in-depth deliberation on "Importance of Avian Biodiversity Conservation and the Role of Citizen Science in achieving this". Birds play various key roles in ecosystems, including pollination, seed dispersal, pest control, and serving as indicators of environmental health. Citizens can play a vital role in collecting data on bird populations, behaviour and distribution. This data, when aggregated on a large scale, provides valuable information for researchers and conservationists to make informed decisions.

In his Presidential speech, Dr. Haradhan Saha, Principal, stressed the need of developing the habit of nature conservation at grass root level. He also encouraged the students to take up various biodiversity conservations steps in their own local areas.

The Vote of Thanks was proposed by Dr. Singh Kwraak Santua, Jamatia, Organizing Secretary of the symposium, who in his concluding remarks stressed that involving citizens in conservation efforts fosters a sense of community ownership and empowerment. Local communities are often better equipped to address conservation challenges and can contribute unique insights into the needs of bird species in their areas. Sustainable insect pest management involves a combination of the long-term environmental impact, potential harm to beneficial organisms, and the development of resistance when implementing pest management strategies.

The event was attended by students and faculty members of the college and was lauded by all.
